TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 16, 1867

Washington Territory Union Convention.

The Union Republican party of Washington Territory meet to day (Tuesday) in Convention at Vancouver to nominate a delegate to Congress, and as we have heard the views of many of the delegates to the Convention, now in the city perhaps a suggestion or two may be received by our friends The identity of interests, both political and general, of our neighbors with our own, would afford an apology, if any were needed, for our alluding to the subject

It is conceded by the well informed of both parties that the political forces over the river are pretty evenly balanced, and that the result will depend to a great extent upon the nominations made by the respective Conventions, and the vigor and thoroughness of the canvass From this statement of the case the necessity arises of deliberate and careful action of our friends. They cannot afford to take steps hastily or inconsiderately. But when the case has been maturely considered, the Convention should at once nominate its candidate without waiting for the action of the opposite party. There is no good reason why the action of the Democrats should be waited for, but there is every reason why the Union party, while proceeding with due deliberation, should also act with boldness and independence

Local interests and claims are of course being discussed among our neighbors, and some of them say to us We should have the candidate because the candidate has never been given to us, and because none of the offices or patronage of the Territory have been bestowed upon our people. Others say that this is a sectional view and ought not to control the Convention, and that the best man should be taken wherever that man may be found. Both these views are to be regarded. There is a good deal that is local and selfish in human nature, and while it might be best if it were otherwise, we must nevertheless, in all our calculations take human nature as it is. It may be stated as a fact recognized everywhere that if honors and patronage for any considerable time are conferred exclusively on any particular portion of a State, there invariably arises a jealousy, and a complaint of unfairness. On the other hand the argument is irresistible that merit is not bounded by local lines. This fact should not be forgotten. That a certain portion of a State or Territory has never had a candidate is no argument in favor of any one, unless such person is the best man that can be found. It would seem to be a fair statement of the case to say that no man should be nominated because his section has never had a candidate, if he is not every way a fit man; but if he is as good a man as the more favored section can present, then the matter of locality may properly be considered in the choice of a candidate

From what we can learn, we judge that quite a number of names will be before the Convention, and the merits of these different men are now being actively discussed by their friends. A good deal of rivalry is no injury to any party, and if it does not degenerate into bitterness, it may strengthen a party rather than weaken it. The candidate should be thoroughly and reliably a Union man, and identified with the Union Republican party of the country as against Johnsonism, Copperheadism, and so-called Conservatism. There is no middle ground between the two great parties. There is not a particle of difference between the support of the administration who refuse the name of Democrats, and the Copperheads themselves. At this stage of affairs there is no sense in nominating a candidate who does not recognize the actual situation of parties, and who does not openly and unitedly with the great Union party of the country. Nor is there any sense in a "trimming, evasive, quibbling, equivocal platform. On a platform of this kind the Republicans of Washington Territory will inevitably be defeated. They will be considered as "Radicals" whether they deny it or not, and there is no reason for making apology for holding radical Union sentiments. To bring out any doubtful man, or to construct a half and half platform for the sake of any supposed strength with the enemy, will be found a fallacious expedient. A candidate should be able to make an able and effective canvass. Many great questions are now before the public mind, and it is of the first importance, and indeed absolutely essential that these questions should be freely and thoroughly discussed before the people. But probably we need add nothing more, and possibly we have said too much; but our interest in the success of our friends must furnish our reason

It is to day the high purpose of a great people that the fruits of four years bloody war shall not be lost and that the Government shall not be taken from the hands of those who saved it and given into the hands of those who worked to destroy it, and though Washington Territory is on the extreme verge of the nation, yet it is not so distant from the national heart as not to share in this patriotic purpose.

Indian Tribes of Oregon.

In the sub-report of Mr. Nesmith accompanying the report of the Congressional Committee on the the condition of the Indian tribes of the United States, an estimate is presented of the number of Indians in Oregon, together with a variety of observations upon their condition and management. The number at the Siletz Agency is computed at two thousand; at Grande Ronde Agency, at one thousand and sixty-four, at Warm Springs Agency, at seven hundred and fifty-nine The Snakes, Klamaths and Modocs in southeastern Oregon, comprising what are known as the untamed tribes, are variously estimated at from two to three thousand persons. The Indians on the Coast Reservation have decreased greatly in numbers since 1856, when they were removed from that place to Southern Oregon. The Rogue river tribes then numbered five thousand. The two thousand now at Siletz Ag'cy are the only remnants of these bands. Mr. Nesmith recommends that the Indians at the Grande Ronde Agency be removed to Siletz, "where they could be more easily and better provided for, until such time as the diseases with which they are now universally infected shall result in their total extinction." He adds that "at Siletz there is ample room for these people; by their being incorporated with the tribes now there, the services of one agent and several employes might be dispensed with The Government would also be relieved of the expense of keeping up a military post and garrison, as is now done at their present location." There are practical suggestions, and should be acted upon. Of the Umatilla Reservation, Mr Nesmith says, "While it is the best adapted to the wants of the Indians, I cannot but regard its location as unfavorable, from the fact that it lies in the way of the greatest thoroughfare leading from the Columbia to all the rich mining region east of the Blue Mountains, rendering a conflict between the Indians and reckless white persons imminent at any moment The Indians are averse to being removed, and the amount of money expended in opening farms and building mills and houses, would seem to forbid any attempt in that direction at present."

Michael Dunn, Victor Rowley, Michael Deal and Henry Kurtz, convicts in the Idaho penitentiary, escaped on the 4th inst. from their place of confinement at Boise City.

FROM OWYHEE

From the Avalanche of the 6th inst, we have the following

The Chinamen along the Jordan below Ruby and at Boonville are busily engaged in preparing their sluices, water wheels and timbers for washing at the first flow of water. They will take out a large quantity of dust this year

The Odd Fellows of Owyhee have formed a temporary Organization, and will meet in Masonic Hall every Sunday evening at 7 30 o'clock. In about one month they expect a complete regular organization under proper authority

From some documents recently received at the Ruby P O it is believed a postoffice has been established in Jordan valley—about 30 miles from here We are informed that an application for one was made some time ago

The Cosmos Mill whistle has again given forth its cheerful sound. The mill started up in the early part of the week, but owing to disuse of belts, tanks, etc, they were found to need some repairs, and did not get fairly under way before Wednesday It is now running smoothly and with the improvements made by Mr Lewis will save the gold and silver and make profits out of a lot of mixed and low grade ore on the yard

INDIAN MATTERS.

A letter dated Owyhee Ferry, April 1st, gives the following

Major Hunt, of Camp Lyon, with his Cavalry Company, is encamped here this evening He separated from General Crook a few days ago out in the Camp Warner country. The General and Major Walker, with a Cavalry Company from Camp C F Smith, are on their way around on the Malheur river, and will be in to Fort Boise in a few days, from whence they intend to start again in a short time after the Indianly Major Hunt is going in to Camp Lyon, and in a few days will be ready to take the trail again This time he will start from the Owyhee Ferry, follow up the South Fork and sweep the river to its source The Major is "on it" in earnest He comprehends the Indian question here, and is thoroughly waked up He has with him the well known mountaineers, Dave Pickett and Bobby, who act as guides and scouts, and who also have four Indian scouts with them that do good service on the war path The Major's cavalry, although chiefly composed of young men, have the appearance of old veterans, their rough and weather-beaten faces, with a bold and active appearance, at once indicates them a terror to the redskins when they chance to meet The Major reports plenty of Indians in the vicinity of Warner Lake, but says that he could not find them together in sufficient numbers to obtain a fight

The winter has been very severe out there, there being much more snow than was anticipated One soldier, a sergeant, was lost and perished in the snow The entire company were compelled to walk around a small circle in the snow for several nights, not daring to lay down or sleep for fear of perishing with the cold.

From present military appearances, the aboriginies will have so much business to attend to with Uncle Sam this summer that they will be but little trouble to ranchmen and travelers

The Mines of '49 Creek.—A correspondent writes as follows to the Walla Walla Statesman from Colville, April 3d:

The news from Creek '49 is very encouraging, and great excitement prevails among the miners and business men of the valley since my last The news has been such as to confirm the existence of rich mines in that locality—much richer and more extensive than at first credited Numerous letters received from that point, and the arrival of men who went there a few weeks since for the express purpose of ascertaining the truth of the reports, all agree that the mines will pay from $12 to $18 per day to the man—though in many places much greater—that is believed to be an average, as far as prospected up and down the creek. These mines are very easily worked, but little stripping, from eight to twelve feet to the bed rock, nearly all of which is pay dirt, though the nearer the bed rock the better the prospect. All the work that has been done so far is on bars along the creek, though one man who came from there a few days since gives it as his opinion that the beach diggings will prove much better than the creek. There has been two other creeks discovered near by that prospect nearly as well as '49, though no work has been done on them yet. About 20 men wintered in the mines, and about 70 started during the last ten days, and many others are preparing for a start. Nearly every man in the valley whose business is such that he can go, has either gone or is making preparations to go. These mines are much more extensive than at first thought. There has already been good prospects found over sufficient ground for at least fifteen hundred claims, some state more (that is on one creek.) The gold is rather coarse, and about the quality of Kootenay gold. These mines have a great advantage over many other new mining camps, from the fact of their easy access, and being easily worked.

Reptiles in Tubs of Sauer Kraut.

[From the Hamilton (C W) Times]

During last fall Mr. Charles Motzer, a German citizen residing on Bay street, put up a large quantity of his favorite article of diet, known as sauer kraut in the preparation of which he tested the efficacy of a receipt suggested to him by a friend. The experiment proved a failure, as the introduction of some description of alkali had the effect of reducing the cabbage into a mash and causing a strong fomentation, rendering the commodity entirely unfit for use as an article of diet The mixture was left standing in the cellar undisturbed until Thursday last, when a curious circumstance led to an examination of the tubs in which it was deposited, resulting in a most wonderful discovery. On the day mentioned a cat emerged from the cellar into Mr. Motzer's kitchen, having in custody a large reptile of the lizard species, which wriggled violently and seemed extremely tenacious of life. Mr. Motzer at once proceeded to the cellar and found some dozen or more of the same description of reptiles, which were exceedingly lively, and sought to secrete themselves under boards, etc, on the approach of a light.

While prospecting about the source of these strange creatures, the tubs in which the sauer Kraut had been deposited were examined, and presented a sight truly startling. The substance had been transformed into a mass of life and animation, and the curious reptiles were observed in every stage of development. The smallest specimens were about two inches in length, and seemed to be acquiring the least degree of animation. Of these, the bodies were quite transparent, with a slight yellowish tinge, and about the consistence of jelly. Specimens in a more advanced stage assumed a pink hue, with bodies more opaque The fully developed reptiles measured from six to eight, and even ten inches in length, with bodies hard and fleshy, of a brilliant crimson color The back deepens into a black line from the head to the tip of the tail, while the belly is of a delicate pink, merging into white The form of the reptile is said to be very similar to the chameleon, having four legs, with indications of claws, and its movements are very lively. The eyes are sharp and serpent like, and surrounded with a yellowish ring merging into black Several specimens have been secured by a medical gentleman, and are preserved in spirits A microscopic examination shows a fine coating of scales and serried formation of the back and tail Mr Motzer still allows the tubs to remain undisturbed, and is watching the progress of the curious freak of nature, it being evident that the entire stock of the dainty commodity, which was intended to supply his table through the winter, will ultimately take to itself legs, if not wings, and travel off on it own account, in which case the kingdom of reptiles is augmented by another very interesting species, if the climate of Canada will permit its propagation This remarkable case presents a grave warning to consumers of sauer Kraut, to take great care that its preparation is not congenial to the generation of animal life, else a malady more fearful than the trichina spiralis may yet be engendered.

Letter from Mrs Lincoln.—The French papers publish the following letter addressed to the committee charged with presenting a commemorative medal to Mrs Lincoln

CHICAGO, January 2, 1867

Gentlemen I have received the medal you have sent me I cannot express the emotion with which this proof of the sentiments of so many thousands of your countrymen fills me So marked a testimony to the memory of my husband, given in honor of his services in the cause of liberty by those who in another land work for the same great end, touches me profoundly and I beg you to accept, for yourselves and those you represent, my most grateful thanks I am with the profoundest respect, your most obedient servant. MARY LINCOLN

It is proposed to publish a morning paper on board the steamship Great Eastern on her voyage from America across the Atlantic The paper will be called the Great Eastern Gazette, and it is announced that a novellette, "The Story of Two Hearts," already has been written, to be published in a serial form for the projected journal

The Democrats of Walla Walla will hold their County Convention on the 1st of May

The Owyhee Avalanche is credibly informed that some practical printer is about to commence the publication of a journal at Baker City, Oregon. Baker county is rapidly growing in population, mining and agricultural—and a newspaper should be established therein on all elements that encourage. If properly conducted Baker county contains the most valuable settlement of Jordan valley, and mining Owyhee, also Camps Lincoln, Lyon Smith and Watson—all in the District of Owyhee

Spiritual Manifestations in St Louis.—The St Louis Democrat, of March 7th gives the following exposition

Owing to the inability of John Owens to fill his engagement at Dodge's Opera House, that establishment has been dull the week without any particular attraction On Tuesday night the romantic play of Rob Roy was put upon the stage, with A B Pearson as the Red McGregor We have seen Rob Roy played several times, but never saw it so poorly put upon the stage as on this occasion

After the McGregor had killed his enemy, by thrusting his sword through the air, some thirty feet behind the fifth rib, the wonderful spiritual medium, Colchester appeared upon the boards He was in a highly spiritual condition and at once proceeded to business He desired the audience to select a Committee of two gentlemen to superintend his demonstrations, and see that everything was done on the square

"Rogers! Carr! Criswell! Jonks!" were called by the audience, but neither of these staunch Spiritualists were disposed to make their first appearance on the stage

The portly form of Britton A. Hill arose and at once the audience called upon Hill. That gentleman finally consented to serve provided De Lassus would act as his colleague DeLassus agreed, and the Committee stepped upon the stage and took their positions by the side of the great medium.

Colchester next desired the audience to write upon slips of paper such questions as they might choose, and send them up to be answered A large number of questions were written, folded up and put in a hat Colchester then proceeded to answer the questions The first one was thrown aside, the answer to the next was vague, and not one of them was answered fully and satisfactorily

Another hitch occurred Hill, who had gone forward to act as one of the Committee, had left his specs behind and couldn't read a word of the answers handed to him. DeLassus had great difficulty in deciphering the writing, and the whole thing dragged as heavily as the play of Rob Roy

One question was: "Who stole the ham?" The answer was that the spirits know nothing about it, but Hill, not having his specs, read it, "Apply to the police." Some one inquired for his grandmother, and the answer was that his grandmother was not present. The answers were written by the medium, who wrote them with his right hand, sitting behind a table It was observed that he kept his left hand out of sight, and appeared to be fingering something while engaged in writing.

After awhile the medium disappeared behind the scenes for a moment, and on returning pulled up his coat sleeve and displayed to the eyes of the Committee a name in illuminated letters—looking like phosphorus—printed or written upon his arm. This name was invisible to the audience, and could not be seen by Hill without spectacles De Lassus did not state whether he saw it or not To Colchester it was plainly visible

By this time the audience were getting disgusted, and a number of them left Hill begged to be relieved, and some one took his place. A young man was called upon the stage, a stove pipe hat placed on his hand, and a number of slips of paper dropped into the hat. He was told to draw out a name and drop it on the floor, which he did with the greatest ease, and this feat was about as wonderful as anything we saw. He was told to take out a name and hold it in his hand. The medium stood ten steps distant and called out the name The slip was handed to the Committee and found to contain the name called out by the medium. Overpowered by this supernatural performance, we retired from the theatre, and dreamed all night about ghosts and men without spectacles

We really hope Dollar will be able to furnish his patrons with something in the shape of amusements of a more entertaining character than these "manifestations," or whatever they are called.

Stewart's New Palace.—The dry goods king of the continent, A T. Stewart of New York, is building a residence at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty fourth streets. The building was commenced three years ago and will require two years more to finish it. The best house in Fifth avenue—Old Dr. Jacob Townsend's—which cost $150,000, was torn down to make a site for the new structure, and by the time it is finished it will have cost no less than $1,800,000. The house is built wholly of marble inside and out, says the Bulletin's correspondent. It has a front of 62 feet on Fifth avenue and 132 feet on Thirty fourth street, and is 100 feet high It has three stories and a basement, with a Mansardo roof surmounting the upper story The basement is ten feet in hight, the first story twenty-two feet, the second twenty feet, the third seventeen, and the Mansardo roof 19. The style of architecture is Corinthian, which as followed throughout as nearly as the necessities of modern dwellings will permit The entrance on Fifth avenue is flanked by Corinthian columns, 25 feet high, with the most elaborately carved caps, and the Thirty-fourth street entrance is of the same general style and proportion The interior of the house which is not yet half finished, comprises in the structure of the various apartments every variety of the most costly marbles to be found in Europe or America, and is intended to be a perfect work of Art throughout. The grand stairway leading to the top of the house and surmounted by a dome 12 feet in hight, is ornamented with scrolls, medallions, arabesques, pilasters, rare mosaics, etc., in great profusion and wrought in the most artistic patterns. The parlor is 50 by 25 feet, the reception room 19 by 32, dining room the same, breakfast room 19 by 25, library 55 by 25, and the picture gallery—the great feature of all—72 by 30. This picture gallery is designed to be the finest thing of the kind in America, not only as regards the gallery itself, but the works of Art that are to occupy it Stewart has already over $300,000 of the best paintings that could be bought, including the original Bonheur's Horse Fair recently purchased It is said that Stewart intends eventually to donate the entire establishment to the city of New York as an Art Gallery, and that the building is constructed more with that view than a residence for its owner, who has no children to "dream that they dwelt in marble halls" and who might be supposed to lament the transfer

CONGRESS AT ITS LAST SESSION HAVING passed a BANKRUPT LAW it is now within the power of every man that is hopelessly in debt, to free himself from the press of debts which cramp his action and which he is wholly unable otherwise to discharge The District Court of the United States, which sits alone in the city of Portland, has under this law, an exclusive jurisdiction of all cases in Bankruptcy The undersigned has procured a copy of the law and are ready, as soon as a Register is appointed, to attend promptly to procuring discharges in Bankruptcy for all who may feel disposed to favor them with their patronage.

SAN FRANCISCO ASSAYING AND REFINING WORKS.

No. 416 Montgomery Street,

(Successors to Kellogg, Hewston & Company)

CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000!

Directors:

JOHN PARROTT CHAS E McLANE,

WM C RALSTON, A HAYWARD,

LOUIS A CARNETT

LOUIS A CARNETT, President and Manager

JOHN HEWSTON Jr Chemist and Superintendent

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works and introduced many other important improvements are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the mining and commercial value of bullion

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent. (hereinafter a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000 and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1,000, and one-eighth of one per cent for all amounts over that sum, and one fifteenth, on the silver contained Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS

On bullion under 500 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce

On bullion from 500@600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce

On bullion from 600@750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce

On bullion from 750@940½ parts gold, 8 cents per ounce

Above 950 the only charge will be for coinage But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent.—and which is paid by us to that institution But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint

Gold bars of either fineness, in good standing, will be cashed by us at the highest market prices.

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co's Express

CHARGES AT U S BRANCH MINT

For the convenience of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint, we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 900 parts gold, 8 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 900@600 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 600@750 parts gold, 11 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 750@850 parts gold, 14 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 850@940½ parts gold, 14 cents per ounce

The charge for coinage is half of one per cent, and the charge for making fine silver bars, the same

Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of unparted gold bars sold in the market—assuming that the bars have cost ½ of one per cent.—they must be sold at the following par rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage

850 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents

845 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents

825 par to equal San Francisco A. & R. Works return, at refining charge of 8 cents mh16d3m

To be out for he never it has been difficult to ascertain just how matters were standing and who was ahead We had an unpleasable curiosity to know in advance, on whom was to fall the crown of victory and on whom the thorny crown of martyrdom and defeat. We went out into the highways and by ways of the city to learn We learned We asked how... gate No 1, and he told us who was ahead and who had the flattering chances Meeting another delegate No ... we asked him how he liked the nominations "What nonsense" asks he "Is astonishment Why haven't you heard?—Judge W [illegible] sent to ahead and has the flattering chances" Says delegate, No 2, "I am ready to bet my chances" Says Judge W "bet is the ghost of a chance, for Mr O of Puget Sound, is ahead and he has flattering chances He'll be nominated And delegate No 2 went his way perhaps, we don't say, certainly, to arrange with Mr O for the distribution of Congressional favors Well, thought we that delegate No 1, is assuredly not up in front, he can't see much through those polit cal mist Mr Delegate No 2, Mr O is the man, chief and Judge will sleep" "Ah, but here comes delegate No 3— Well, well, Ah, here comes delegate No 3— Mr Delegate how do you like the nomination of Mr O' Delegate No 3 laughed yes, actually laugh ed at the broadest of broad grins, as he replied "No you don't you can't play Mr O fin—he played out, already, for Mr D will be nominated and he has the most flattering chances We went on Delegate No 4 singularly enough did not seem to hold the same opinion as either of the others No 4 is a politician, he can see through a mill stone, the fan tastic skein of politics is as nothing to his skill ful fingers. No 4 sees plainly enough that the best way out of all these bogs of doubt and fogs of contemplation, and clogs of disagreement is to unite all the delegates on a compromise man—somebody who have been talked of Just so. Put this and that to gether and the cat under the meal is as visible as a full moon in a clear sky Again we traveled We wanted to know who was to be the Democratic candidate We found out Dry sat No. 1 said Mr D of Walla Walla. No. 2 pooh'ed at that and assured us that Judge L would surely get it on the first ballot No. 3 swore upon the honor of a first class politician and Pent Dry that he'd been at all the key holes and he was positive that Mr L of Walla Walla, was ahead and in very flattering chances No. 4 offered to bet a half bush el of beans that Puget Sound would furnish the timber for the next C ress and that Mr O would distribute Andy Jo flags for the next two years among the children of twelve clean sisters Among so many opinions, so freely expressed, he would be a dullard indeed if he did not pick up at least one which he could call his own We picked upon—an opinion, we mean We've been a think it will do It is as "follers" Every one has gone ahead—among his particular friends; and every one has a flattering "chance"—if he chance to be ... The Convention will be over by Thursday night and then—we shall all know more about the matter than now.

NEW STEAMER FOR THE TRANSPORTATION OF GOVERNMENT FREIGHT.—The bids for the transportation of Government freight for which the United States Quartermaster of the Department has been advertising, were opened yesterday at 12 o clock M [illegible] the same service had been advertised at San Francisco and duly opened at the same time The bids received from there were forwarded immediately by telegraph, and the contract will be awarded at San Francisco The bids here were as follows, as we learn from one of the parties John Creighton offered to transport Government freight from Vancouver to Camp Lyon for $10 90 per hundred pounds; from Vancouver to Camp Winthrop, $13 90 per hundred pounds; from Vancouver to Camp Harney, $20 90 per hundred pounds; from same to Camp Lyon, $9 90; from same to Camp Winthrop, $9, from same to Camp Harney, $12 90 per hundred pounds. LOVE AND ITS SAD EFFECTS.—A Chinaman recently committed suicide at Boise City; cause, unrequited love. After his rejection, he grew disconsolate, found victuals didn't taste good, pined and pined away until at last disemboweled himself with a shotgun His name was Ah Hoo.

"Ah, who would live always!"

THE PIONEER BASE BALL CLUB.—The Pioneer Base Ball Club met last night and perfected a re-organization for the ... Quite a number of new members were admitted, and everything bids fair for a brilliant season's play. The members are requested to assemble on the ground across the river this afternoon at four o'clock, for practice.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.—There were on the P T Co wharf yesterday, a dozen or more large cases, containing agricultural implements and improved farm machinery, all to the address of J W Nesmith, Esq. It would seem that the ex Senator is going in ... largely, about the cultivation and improvement of his ranch on the banks of the Rickreal

GOODS AT AUCTION.—A B Richardson will offer for sale on Wednesday, a large invoice of clothing, hats, blankets, dress goods, boots and shoes, etc., all of which will be ... on the day and arranged for inspection By-by ... he will be glad to call in advance to see the goods

PERSONAL.—Mr. P Bull has a professional card in this day's paper He has removed his office and may now be found with Mr R W Hodgkinson, where those in want of a lawyer may find him

The ... Minister will sail for Victoria on Thursday, the 18th, at 6 o'clock P M

ADDITIONAL FREIGHT FOR THE FALKINBURG.—The Ruler went down yesterday with some additional freight for the bark Falkenburg, consisting of 300 qr sks flour 10 gun ... 45 boxes apples The Falkenburg was towed down to Astoria yesterday and will go to sea with the first favoring wind

A GREAT CONVENTION—IMMENSE HUBBUB.—Nearly all the candidates delegates and visitors to the Vancouver Conventions, were in this city yesterday During the day many of them visited Burman Bros Clothing Store and ... feel themselves fit with new and fashionable suits fit to wear to Congress or any other ... Burman Bros were unanimously nominated by the entire Convention in their store assembled as the best and fairest dealing clothiers on this coast

The best meals in town every day at all ... are served up daily at the LAFAYETTE RESTAURANT ... for Oro Fino Hall All the luxuries and delicacies of the season will be found on the table

PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE!

Pain Killer taken internally should be adulterated with milk or water, and sweetened with sugar if desired, or made into a syrup with molasses. For a cough, a few drops on sugar eaten will be more effective than anything else. For sore throat, gargle the throat with a mixture of Pain Killer and water, and relief is immediate and the cure positive.

It should not be forgotten that the Pain Killer is equal by as good to take internally as to use externally. Each bottle is wrapped with full directions for its use Dyspepsia can be and is cured every day by the use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. This is the most wonderful and valuable medicine ever known for this disease. Its action upon the system is entirely different from any other preparation known. The patient, while taking this medicine may eat anything the appetite craves Sold by all medicine dealers mh20dawlm

"Carpe Diem"

BY OWEN MEREDITH.

To-morrow is a day too far
To trust whate or the day be
We know a little while we are,
But who knows what we may be?

The oak that on the mountain grows
A goodly ship may be,
Next year, but it is as well (who knows?)
May be a gallows tree.

'Tis God made man no doubt—not chance,
He made us great and small
But being, made it is circumstance
That finishes us all

The Author of this world's great plan
The same results will draw
From human life, however man
May keep or break His law

The artist to His art doth look,
And art's great laws ensue,
That those portrayed in Nature's book
Should freely move and act.

The moral of the work unchanged
Endures eternally
However by human wills arranged
The work's details may be

"Give us to day our daily bread
The morrow shall take heed
Unto itself" The Master said
No more No more we need

To-morrow cannot make or mar
To day, whate'er the day be
Nor can the men which now we are
Foresee the men we may be.

The English and American Newspaper Press

[London Letter to the Bulletin]

Although copious extracts are made into the American press from English daily journals, yet I am of the opinion that the character of the London press is not fully understood in the United States. The New York Herald reprints about all that is written in the London sheets pertaining to America. It also reprints many sensational topics originating in England, regarding British relations with France, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Turkey, the East Indies, China, and South and Central America. But all these articles do not probably consume as much space in the Herald's 80 many sails devoted to English opinions of America and Americans. Other New York dailies do much the same, but to less extent This amount of matter placed before the people of the United States is apt to lead to the belief that the English press and people are chiefly exercised over American affairs. A very short term in London has convinced me that this country is more employed in looking after matters nearer home, than about Canada and the United States. Triple more space in the press here is consumed over continental affairs than is devoted to the west. In Canada this nation has not many interests of importance. With us, too, trade is of moment But this island, small as it is, has a multitude of domestic interests to keep watch and guard over, and which requires unceasing vigilance to prevent falling into disorder. As for territory, England has all she wants or ever cares to obtain. To keep what she has some of her statesmen pronounce to be the measure of her future ambition. She has at last even given up Hanover, her pet dependency. The balance of power on the continent she leaves to take care of itself. In my estimation England has turned merchant and is in earnest this time. She went to war, is bent and eyes in debt, and is now glad to keep the peace and save her money.

So far as I have observed, the London daily papers confine their remarks on the United States chiefly to what letter writers send to them from New York city. I have seen but three or four allusions made by the press of this city to any of the New York daily papers. Nor do Englishmen see the papers of that city to any perceptible extent, outside of leading commercial houses having intimate trans-Atlantic business relations. On the contrary, all that emanates from the President, or Secretary of State, or leaders in Congress, is scrutinized very minutely by the London papers and freely commented upon. Unlike the New York Tribune, Times, Herald and World, the London Standard, "the largest daily in the world," and the Telegraph, enjoying "the largest circulation of any paper in the world"—those dailies have correspondents scattered over the world who prepare letters embracing general summaries of all matters worthy of note. These are printed, usually, without editorial comment. Editorial matter pertains chiefly to home topics. These papers through the home and foreign editorial corps, are chiefly made up of original matter. Only now and then do they copy foreign newspaper paragraphs. Nor are their spaces much filled with "Reuter's Telegrams." He supplies all telegrams put into print. About five or six lines, three or four times per week, by the cable, is all that is given to the public from America. Nor does there seem to be any rivalry between the daily sheets to give the latest news. During our civil war I am told that the London papers hoisted sensational headlines and struck off large numbers of copies extra. Indeed the war seems to have brought profitable grists to newspaperial mills in London as well as in New York. It created unlimited demand for extras. The London Times I pass over, since the Bulletin is more familiar with it than I am. The London press report proceedings in the law Courts very fully, and often with editorial reviews. Also, all debates and business in Parliament at length. And here I will remark, that it has transpired in a libel suit that editorials are written by outsiders oftentimes—men whose specialty lies in the line or department of the essay required; that is to say, if a railroad attendant to cure an engineer divines the causes, proximate and remote, for treatment of rinderpest, or a veterinary surgeon takes the pen, on cholera, an M. D., on books and literature, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, and strolling literateurs. No one mind is sufficiently encyclopedic, among all the cognoscenti, to write the long-drawn, heavy and exhaustive leaders which appear from day to day. If Mr. Bright, for instance, is to be reviewed, a chronology of his worst sayings and sentences furnishes the materials for attack by political opponents, all duly chronicled by a scholarly drudge Englishmen and Scotchmen of education, practice their pens and generally print at some period of life. Few are good, talkers where so many are expert writers.

There is room right here in London for a sprightly morning paper, to hit off in lightpara graphs, daily occurrences, comprising gossip, chit-chat, and a thousand trifles light as air, to be picked up simply by stooping for them. A witty paragraphist to put them in dress and the thing is done. The female world, tired to death with long prose essays, would support such a sheet, if it was made an agreeable family paper, devoid of politics.

THE MUTILATED SHERIDAN DISPATCHES.—The New Orleans investigating committee has been trying to find out who furnished the garbled dispatches of General Sheridan to the press. They cannot trace them home, but the dishonorable work was done at the White House, though the President seems to be cleared by the readiness with which he furnished the entire correspondence to the press on being informed of the mutilation committed It appears that the mutilated dispatch of Sheridan was printed at New Orleans the same day as in New York, and on his writing indignantly to General Grant on the subject the latter sent copies of all the correspondence in full to Secretary Stanton, asking to have them published, and saying: "Already a garbled version of one of these dispatches and an incomplete copy of another, have appeared in the public prints These publications put Gen. Sheridan in the position of taking a partisan view of the whole question, and what is still worse, of being one day on one side of the question and another day on the other side. His dispatches in full show that he takes no partisan view, but reports what he believes to be the facts, without regard to who is hit I am just in receipt of a telegram from him showing displeasure at his dispatches getting into print in a mutilated and incomplete form."

A WORD FOR THE BEARD.—It might be a fitting subject for the consideration of our learned societies to name the cause which has made the most manly race on earth submit for the last two centuries to the absurd practice of shaving the hair off certain patches of the human face, instead of allowing it to grow as nature intended. If common sense would but convince men that Nature has furnished each with a thick or scanty beard, precisely as it suits his features, they would cease their endeavors to resemble the beardless ape, in samuch as they resemble him, according to modern philosophy, too much already. Judging from the signs of the times, it is not uttering a very bold prediction, if we express our belief that our children will wonder how their respected parents who, whatever hurry they might have been in, could sit before a looking glass, morning after morning, razor in hand, making all sorts of grimaces at the risk of cutting their throats the only known result being to render the chin, shortly after the smoothing process, not unlike that useful article of the kitchen, called a nutmeg grater

The suicide of two young lovers at Sancti-Spiritus, in Cuba, has caused a great sensation there. A young man, says a correspondent, "rendered desperate at being refused the hand of his adored one on account of his poverty, proposed to her the fatal alternative from which Hamlet shrunk back appalled. She consented, and leaning her head on the shoulder of her lover, received from him that death which was welcome to his company; a second shot from his revolver, and the pair were united in death. Romeo and Juliet No. 2.

An Irish Catholic Bishop Curses the Fenians.

On Saturday, February 17th, Dr Moriarty, Bishop of Kerry, preached a sermon in the Catholic Cathedral, Killarney, on the subject of the attempted rebellion which had taken place in his diocese. He said Those people were unanswerable to God for their conduct, for they had. I regret to say sense enough to know what they were doing was a grievous crime It is just twelve months ago since I explained at considerable length in Fenton Pastoral the deep guiltiness of rebellion against lawful authority, so they cannot plead that they were not instructed and forewarned They resisted the ordinance of God, and by so doing they purchased for themselves damnation—* * *—the miserable swindlers who care not to endanger the necks of the men who trust them—who care not how many are murdered by the rebellion or hanged by the strong arm of the law, provided they can get a supply of dollars either for their pleasures or for their wants Oh! God's curse—His withering, blasting, blighting curse upon them! I preached to you last Sunday on the eternity of hell's torments Human reason was inclined to say, "It is a hard word, and who can bear it?" But when we look down into the lath omless depths of this infamy of the heads of the Fenian conspiracy, we must acknowledge that eternity is not long enough nor hell hot enough to punish such miscreants

During the delivery of the discourse numbers of young men left the cathedral.

Dr Moriarty has long been known as the most thorough "West Briton" among the Irish Bishops, Next to the Catholic Church, the thing he admires most on earth is the British Constitution, and of all the governments on earth the greatest, the most glorious, and the best in his eyes, is the English As for the Queen—well, he stops short of worshiping her In a public speech of his he declared the faults of the British Constitution to be like the spots on the sun, so trivial as to be lost in the flood of its splendor! No wonder that he was set nearly frantic by the fact that, of all parts of Ireland, the firs armed outbreak of Fenianism should occur in his diocese. Yet he did justice, in some respects to the young men who took part in it. He dwelt upon the fact that they committed no acts of pillage, and injured no one in person or property to the value of a sixpence, with the exception of their acts of war, as they supposed them to be, against the policeman and the coast guard station As a politician, his lordship is and has been very unpopular with a great portion of his flock He was hissed by them at a public meeting in his own diocese, a short time ago. The object of the meeting was to raise funds for the relief of the distress then existing among the Lancashire operatives, but that there was at the same time, and had been a short while previously, a dire distress in Kerry, for the relief of which no local meetings had been got up, so his people settled on this occasion to give him a "bit of their mind."

Cardinal Cullen, at the Lord Mayor's inauguration dinner in Dublin, "hoped the day would soon arrive when those things which degrade the country and led her people into false positions might be swept away. False patriotism was degradation and might be perverted to ruin Within the last few days it was plain that the patriotism to which he alluded ought to be prohibited by every one who loved his country."

Referring to the opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy to the Fenian movement, Lord Naas, the Irish Secretary, said in Parliament:

"I should not perform my duty if I did not state here, in regard to recent events in the south and west of Ireland, how much this country is indebted to the exertions of the Roman Catholic clergy. Every one knows how great their influence is over their people, and I have great satisfaction in stating that I believe there is not a Roman Catholic clergyman who has not, either directly or indirectly, exercised the whole of his influence to prevent the people from taking a part in this conspiracy."

Weather Wisdom.

Changes of the weather may be forseen, often by long intervals, by other aids far more efficacious than those of the moon or of weather oycles, and rivalry, even, may be established with the horologists of Whitehall. The apparatus required may, with the exception of a barometer and the clouds, be all found in the animal kingdom, a careful observation of the habits of some of the denizens of which is the sure road to successful weather wisdom. There seems to be a nobility to atmospheric changes in the lower orders of creation which answers them as instincts, and directly gives them information which man only arrives at by the longer road to reason. The scent of the hound is an instance of the delicate sense, which we cannot form an idea of, though it may help us to conceive the idea of "pigs seeing the wind," or of horses and cattle "sniffing a distant storm." A sow carrying a straw in her mouth to make her bed, is as sure an indication of coming foul weather as any the barometer can give; and when goats turns her tail to the fire; it is said the same event is predicted. It is as true of the skies as of domestic affairs, that when a hen crows a change for the worse is at hand; and as to the lord of the poultry yard, we have the old saying that "If the cock crows going to bed,

He is sure to rise with a watery head."

Robin Redbreast singing in the midst of a rain on the top twig of a tree is an infallible index of a beneficial change to fair for a few days at least, and the screech of the owl under similar circumstances is said to have the same meaning, though the peacocks' scream at all times denotes unpleasant weather. Frogs also furnish their signs, becoming brown on the approach of rain, but remaining yellow so long as it is absent. There is a curious weather-glass made in Germany, the materials entering into the composition of which are two frogs and ladders being duly put into the water; if the froggies climb their ladders and look over the vessel's side, foul days are at hand, if they remain below, the sky will continue fine Leeches in water furnish similar indications, but spiders and snails are the most remarkable of all the weather prophets. When the former quicken their webs at night, the morning is sure to be fine, if they make them in the morning, the coming day may be relied on for a drive or a walk. Hence the saying

"When you see the gossamer flying,
Be sure the air is drying"

An instance is on record of a French officer confined in a prison in Utrecht during the wars of the French Revolution, having so closely and accurately observed the habits of some spiders that were his sole companions, that he was able by their movements to foretell a frost fourteen days before it came, and thereby turn certain defeat of the French army into a glorious victory. But snails are remarkable weather indicators. Like frogs, their colors change on the approach of rain, and some species indicate rain so much as ten days before by tubercles, which appear on their bodies, and seem intended for the purpose of imbibing the approaching moisture As a general rule, these creatures, according to their habits, two or three days before rain, may be seen climbing the trunks of trees, or seeking shelter under leaves, or making their way to open places. We thus see, by a careful assortment of spiders, snails, frogs and leeches, and a few domestic animals, combined with a good barometer, and accurate observation of the language of the clouds, and the songs and cries of birds, any person may easily become a weather prophet of no mean practical wisdom But how shall we account for the more distant foresight of weather which some animals have? What teaches the bees to kill their drones early if a wet summer is coming, or the water fowl to forsake the marshes if it is to be dry? By what vision does the swallow know the approach of a fine summer, and consequently set forth early on his migration to northern regions? By what foreknowledge is the worm led to burrow deep into the earth if the winter is to be cold? In all these cases there is distant foresight, for action is taken a month at least before the anticipated foul or fair can come. Reason cannot fathom the mystery, it has to confess itself baffled and excelled by the light enjoyed by insect and bird and brute.

HOW RAIN FALLS.—Where does the rain come from? You answer, "From the clouds" But where do the clouds come from? You may think the cold wind blows them over you But if it blows clouds over you from somewhere else, it also blows them from over you to other places. The fact is, the water of the clouds is just as much over you on a clear day as on a cloudy or rainy day On a fair day, when no clouds are seen, the water is divided up into such small particles that it does not obstruct the sun's light, and so you see no cloud or water. A change of temperature in the atmosphere, as when it warmer and colder current of air meet, causes the small particles of water to unite in pairs, and the pairs unite and these quadruple drops unite, and so on until hundreds or thousands of the small invisible particles unite in one It is thus that clouds gather in a clear sky. When enough drops unite to make one too heavy to float in the air, it begins to fall. It meets and unites with many others in falling, and often so many unite that great rain drops are formed by the time they get to the ground. Each large drop is made up of thousands, perhaps millions, of the small drops that float in the unseen air in a clear day.—American Agriculturist.

COINCIDENCE EXTRAORDINARY.—A remarkable and perhaps unparalleled coincidence is recorded in the civil registry of Bar-sur Aube, in France. In 1866 there were inscribed there one hundred and six births, one hundred and six deaths, and one hundred and six marriages

The Antiquity of Billiards

LETTER FROM JUDGE CATON

[From the Billiard Cue for February]

The origin of the game of billiards, like the antiquity of Stonehenge, has thus far evaded all investigation Hitherto, although it was deemed highly improbable that the Templars brought it with them on their return from the Holy Land, at the close of the twelfth century, the belief has obtained, more particularly in Europe, that it was not known until centuries afterwards when it was invented by Henri Devinge a French artist Shakspeare causes Cleopatra to exclaim "Charmian let us go to billiards," but this has been held to be one of the several anachronisms or antedates, with which "nature's great expositor" stands charged Yet, were archæology to be closely studied by the student of billiards, we doubt not that it would appear that Shakspeare, instead of being guilty of prochronism, committed no error at all, or at least some centuries nearer the rent time, in fixing the age of billiards, than the French, who, according to the literary remains of a much earlier epoch than that which witnessed the triumphs of the Cid, or the exploits of Richard Cœur de Lion, have perpetrated the equally gross error of parachronism, in making the sixteenth century serve as the birthtime of what Louis the Fourteenth designated "the noble game,' and what in Germany has been called "the king of games and the game of kings"

In the letter we append, written by a gentleman who up to 1864 occupied the distinguished position of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois, there is what may be regarded as conclusive evidence that the game of billiards was known prior to A D 148, and as Cleopatra lived B C. 30 years, there is but little latitude for doubt that Shakspeare who must have been well versed in classic lore—his famous soliloquy, "To be, or not to be," having been taken almost word for word from Plato—found in the earlier authors frequent allusion to billiards. Plutarch, whose Lives are reproduced, so to speak, in Shakspeare's works, does not, that we remember, mention billiards But it is not likely that, even had the play been known, he would have referred to it, as he treats mainly, if not wholly, of the important doings and achievements of the ancients If not in support of the extract from the Abbe McGeoghegan's History of Ireland, then certainly in proof that billiards was one of the amusements in Europe centuries anterior to the return of the Templars, we have the statement of the late Rev Archbishop Hughes, who was himself a billiard player, that he remembered reading in the confessions of St. Augustine, born A. D 430, an allusion to billiards

We shall now give the letter of the ex-chief justice, which is doubly valuable to the student of billiards, first for the information per se that it contains, and next for its tendency to direct the attention of the antiquaries to a closer examination into the subject And as tournaments at billiards and chess, indicating as they do that Intellect reigns to day, have troubles under foot the sanguinary jewels of the middle ages, it cannot but awaken the pride of ancestry inherent in the Celtic race to be reminded, through the medium of this letter, that the intellectual pastime of billiards was possibly earliest practised by a people whose pregnant and instructive history the world can now learn only by piece meal.

"OTTAWA, Ill, Jan. 8, 1867.

MICHAEL PHELAN, Esq —Dear Sir. I take the liberty of calling your attention to a passage in the above translation, by Bellenden, of Hector Boethius's History of Ireland, page 82 as furnishing pretty conclusive evidence that the game of billiards was in use, at least in Ireland, nearly 1000 years before the return of the Knights Templar to Europe from the first crusade, which you give in your admirable work on billiards as the first authentic date of the introduction of the game into Europe

Our author on the page referred to, as he says, "gravely to show the singular tastes of those early times," gives the substance of the will of Cathire More, a sub king of Ireland, who reigned over the district of Leinster, and who died in the year A D 148.

I quote "To Criomth he bequeathed fifty billiard-balls of brass, with the pools and cues of the same materials; ten tic-tacs, of exquisite workmanship, twelve chess-boards with chess-men."

By the way, can you inform me what is tic-tacs? Does Dryden refer to it when he says "Play at tick and luve the ladies"—as we would say Play at pin and loo a kingdom? Is tic-tac known in Ireland continent?

It is less to feel much interested in being carried back more than 1700 years and shown the monuments of a people so far removed from the centres of civilization, though undoubtedly more learned and refined than any other of the northern nations. Here we find them practising billiards and chess, both can interest those only of cultivated minds and tastes.

Yours truly, J. D. CATON"

Tic-tac—or "tick tack" and "trick-track," according to modern orthography was a game somewhat similar to our back-gammon, and "played with pins and "men." Dryden undoubtedly refers to this game, and it is more than likely, judging from the comments of contemporaneous writers, that Dryden himself had a practical knowledge of it. Tic-tac is indeed the French name for backgammon; the Germans also know it by this name, and the Italians call it Tavola reale, the royal table It was a favorite diversion of the clergy in the 17th and 18th centuries, and (we quote from the American Hoyle, published by Dick & Fitzgerald, of this city,) "it is related of Sir Roger de Coverly, immortal memory, that, wishing to obtain from the university a chaplain of piety, learning and urbanity, he made it a condition that the candidate should at least know something of backgammon"

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS IN IRELAND.—A correspondent of the Cork Herald was taken into custody at Hillsmoy on a charge of sending "false news" to his journal. There is no such crime to the law but that is a small matter in Ireland, where the authorities can make laws for themselves and do as they like. The correspondent walked into the telegraph office with a written message which he intended to have sent It was headed "Rumored disaffection among the military—The soldiers singing sedition songs" The telegraph office being under Government surveillance, the message was handed to a magistrate Two or three other magistrates were assembled immediately, and a consultation was held, the result of which was, that the unlucky purveyor of news was forthwith marched off to prison The strong remonstrances of a military officer, it is said, only saved him from the indignity of handcuffs! These magistrates are some of the local gentry, some of the "shoonees" ilats, the same who run for their lives, like hares, when the Fenian rising reached them, and whose "vigor" and courage since the collapse of the affair are absolutely tremendous.

In discussing the corpse of a pauper at the Twenty third Street Medical College in New York, recently, the students unexpectedly found evidence that another human being had been devoured by the infinitesimal worm which the faculty style trichina spiralis The intestines, when subjected to microscopic examination, proved to be literally alive with these minute destroyers, and they were found in abundance everywhere in the muscular tissue. The body was that of a woman of whom the hospital authorities know nothing, beyond the fact that she was a pauper, and died soon after her admission to Bellevue Hospital, and, as a subject that had perished of an unknown malady, had been surrendered to the surgeons for dissection Trichinæ in enormous numbers having been discovered in the body, the surgeons strove to ascertain something of the history of the woman's case, hoping thus to add to their stock of information concerning the origin of these destructive worms, and of the symptoms of a sufferer afflicted by them but their inquiries were fruitless, and all that is left them is a carcass which worms contorted into food for the dreaded worm

It is a curious fact that out of eighty-five members of the Lower House of the Illinois Legislature, but eight are natives of that State Of the other seventy seven, fifteen were born in New York thirteen in Kentucky, twelve in Ohio, ten in Pennsylvania, eight in Illinois two each in Connecticut, New Jersey, Tennessee, Maine, Massachusetts, and South Carolina One each in New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Indiana, Virginia, North Carolina and Vermont. Of those who were natives of a foreign country, two were born in England, two in Ireland, two in Germany, one in Scotland and one in Canada
